Muslim Democracy Edward Schneier, 2015-10-23 Muslim Democracy explores the relationship between politics and religion in forty seven Muslim majority countries focusing especially on those with democratic experience such as Indonesia and Turkey and drawing comparisons with their regional non Islamic counterparts Unlike most studies of political Islam this is a politically focused book more concerned with governing realities than ideology By changing the terms of the debate from theology to politics and including the full complement of Islamic countries Schneier shows that the boundaries between church and state in the Islamic world are more variable and diverse than is commonly assumed Through case studies and statistical comparisons between Muslim majority countries and their regional counterparts Muslim Democracy shows that countries with different religions but similar histories are not markedly different in their levels of democratization What many Islamists and western observers call Islamic law moreover is more a political than a religious construct with religion more the tool than the engine of politics Women who drive in Saudi Arabia as the author says are not warned they will go to hell but that they will go to jail With the political salience of religion rising in many countries this book is essential reading for students of comparative politics religion and democratization interested in exploring the shifting

Eisenstadt, A. Carl LeVan, Tofigh Maboudi, 2017-07-03 When building democracy through new constitutions the level of participation matters more than the content of the constitution itself This book examines this theory Beyond Ethnic Politics in Africa Dominika Koter, 2016-10-13 Why do ethnic politics emerge in some ethnically diverse societies but not others Focusing on sub Saharan Africa Dominika Koter argues that the prevailing social structures of a country play a central role in how politicians attempt to mobilize voters In particular politicians consider the strength of local leaders such as chiefs or religious dignitaries who have historically played a crucial role in many parts of rural Africa Local leaders can change the electoral dynamics by helping politicians secure votes among people of different ethnicities Ethnic politics thus can be avoided where there are local leaders who can serve as credible electoral intermediaries between voters and politicians Koter shows that there is widespread variation in the standing of local leaders across Africa as a result of long term historical trends which has meant that politicians have mobilized voters in qualitatively different ways resulting in different levels of ethnic politics across the continent Africa in World Politics John W.
