

Circling Meaning in Toni Morrison's Sula

Our life is an apprenticeship to the truth that around every circle another can be drawn; that there is no end in nature, but every end is a beginning; that there is always another dawn soon on midnight, and under every deep a lower deep opens. —Ralph Waldo Emerson, “Circles” (1841)

But that's getting too far ahead of the story, almost to the end, although the end is in the beginning and lies far ahead. —Ralph Ellison, Invitation to a Beheading (1952)

In that place, where they tore the nightshade and blackberry patches from their roots to make room for the McCallen City Golf Course, there was once a neighborhood. —Toni Morrison, Sula (1973)

[A]lthough it is necessary to read and reread those in whose wake I write, the “beats” in whose margins and between whose lines I march and around a text simultaneously study almost identical and entirely other. . . . —Jacques Derrida, Passions (1980)

Twenty-five years after the death of Sula Peace, Nel Green recalls the cycle of her own martyred life as she walks to the nursing home to visit Sula's grandmother. During the visit, she learns that Eva knows the most painful secret of her childhood, which she and Sula have closely kept. When Eva tells her that she and Sula are “just alike,” Nel recoils in anger and embarrassment. She runs from the nursing home to Sula's grave and there faces her own complicity in the death of the little boy known as Chicken Little (163–74). Leaving the grave, Nel suddenly stops:

“Sula!” she whispered, gazing at the tops of the trees. “Sula!”
Leaves stirred; mud shifted; there was the smell of overripe green things. A soft ball of fur broke and scattered like dandelion seeds in the breeze.
“All that time, all that time, I thought I was missing Jude.” And the loss pressed down on her chest and came up into her throat. “We was girls together,” she said as though explaining something. “O Lord, Sula,” she cried, “gid, gid, gidgegid.”
It was a slow cry—loud and long—but it had no bottom and it had no top, just circles and circles of sorrow. (174)

The scene actually begins in the chapter “1937” as Nel, betrayed by Sula and abandoned by Jude, cowers in her bathroom:

Nel waited. Waited for the eldest cry. A scream not for others, not in sympathy for a buried child, or a dead father, but a deeply personal cry for one's own pain. A loud, violent “Why me?” She waited. The mud shifted, the leaves stirred, the smell of overripe green things enveloped her and announced the beginnings of her very own hell.
But it did not come. (108)

That scream does not come for twenty-seven years. In the interim, her repressed scream takes the form of a “little ball of fur and string and hair always floating in the light,” which Nel refuses to face. She believes that the ball represents her memory of Jude; actually it shields her from admitting that Sula is the real loss. Knowing that her grief for Jude will pass and that its passing will be her private hell, Nel fastens her attention on the details of this new life. When she refuses to look at the ball all summer, her agony fades, but it will not entirely disappear (108–09).

By the chapter “1940” Nel's psychological survival has taken the form of motherly martyrdom. She refuses to depend on her parents, and assuming both male and female roles, works where Jude had worked and cares for his abandoned children.

Review of 'Sula' by Toni Morrison Joie Meier, 2013-08 Essay from the year 2012 in the subject American Studies Literature grade 100 West Chester University of Pennsylvania course African American Literary Theory language English abstract Toni Morrison s Sula is an extremely complex work of fiction that some argue functions as parable satire or Black feminist writing However the complexity of the tale of Sula and Nel s lives requires analysis including all of these elements Morrison skillfully blends together gender roles with the binary opposition as she includes Biblical allusions to give clues to the characters personalities and future actions as they struggle against their community It becomes clear to the reader through the characters actions and thoughts that the world which the Bottom created for itself is inherently contradictory as the citizens of the community struggle to maintain binary thinking Sula and Shadrack represent the evil or at least unacceptable in the traditional good evil binary that the Bottom s community upholds Both Sula and Shadrack face ostracization because of the negativity that is attached to them Shadrack however chooses to live within the acceptable boundaries of the community with his celebration of Suicide Day The community sees his celebration as bizarre but in no way a threat to their existence as the years pass Morrison 15
