increasingly demonstrated in the literature underscoring the unsustainable models on which urban life has been made to thrive As these issues become increasingly apparent there are global calls to adopt more sustainable and equitable models however doing so will mean the disruption of economies that have historically relied upon pollution generating industries In order to address these issues the authors examine them from a cross disciplinary perspective bringing in regional local and urban standpoints to subsequently propose an alternative short term economic model that could accelerate the adoption of climate change mitigation infrastructures and urban sustainability in urban areas This book will be of particular value to scholars and students alike in the field of urbanism sustainability and resilience as well as practitioners looking at avenues for economically incentivizing sustainable development in various geographical context Inequalities in Creative Cities

Ulrike Gerhard, Michael Hoelscher, David Wilson, 2016-12-20 This edited volume is a lively and timely appraisal of ordinary cities as they struggle to implement creative redevelopment and economic growth strategies to enhance their global competitiveness The book is concerned with new and often unanticipated inequalities that have emerged from this new city movement As chronicled such cities Cleveland USA Heidelberg Germany Oxford UK Groningen Netherlands Montpellier France but also cities from the Global South such as Cachoeira Brazil and Delhi India now experience new and unexpected realities of poverty segregation neglect of the poor racial and ethnic strife To date planners academics and policy analysts have paid little attention to the connections between this drive in these cities to be more creative and the inequalities that have followed This book keenly making these connections highlights the limited visions that have been applied in this planning drive to make these cities more creative and ultimately more globally competitive Routledge Handbook of Contemporary Japan Hiroko Takeda, Mark Williams, 2020-09-21 The Routledge Handbook of Contemporary Japan presents a synthesized interdisciplinary study of contemporary Japan based on up to date theoretical models designed to provide readers with a comprehensive and full understanding of the dynamics of contemporary Japan In order to achieve this the Handbook is organized into two parts Part I Foundations clarifies the state of contemporary Japan topic by topic by referring to the latest theoretical developments in the relevant disciplinary fields of politics international relations economy society culture and the personal Part II Issues then offers a series of concrete analyses building upon the theoretical discussions introduced in Part I to help undergraduate and postgraduate students learn how to conduct independent analysis Locating Japan in a comparative and interdisciplinary perspective this Handbook is an essential resource for students and scholars interested in Japanese studies Asian studies and global studies Millennial Metropolis Tom Hutton, 2021-09-05 The text offers a critical perspective on complex and consequential aspects of growth and change in London viewed through the lens of multiscalar space and brought to life through exemplary case studies It demonstrates how capital culture and governance have combined to reproduce London within a frame of relational geographies and historical relayering Emphasis is placed on the sequences of political change capital intensification industrial restructuring and cultural infusions which have transformed space in London since the 1980s Tom Hutton contributes to the rich discourse on London's experiences of urbanization by producing a fresh perspective on its development saliency Millennial Metropolis includes a systematic review and synthesis of research literatures on globalizing cities with reference to the reproduction of space at the metropolitan district and neighbourhood scales Hutton offers a nuanced treatment of geographical scale observed in the blending of global transnational processes with the fine grained imprint of governance processes and social relations These processes are manifested in sites of innovation spectacle and social conviviality but also produce experiences of displacement and inequality The author presents a spatial model of metropolitan development by exploring how growth and change in twenty first century London is expressed internally as an enlarged zonal structure extending beyond the traditional territories of central and inner London Serious threats to London are discussed from the isolating implications of Brexit the impact of the Covid 19 pandemic and the dire threat of ecological crises and deteriorating public health associated with climate change This will be an invaluable text for postgraduate students established scholars and upper level undergraduates across diverse disciplines and fields including geography sociology governance studies and planning and urban studies

Cities and the Digital Revolution Zaheer Allam, 2019-10-16 This book explores the emergence and development of data in cities It exposes how Information Communication Technology ICT corporations seeking to capitalize on cities developing needs for urban technologies have contributed to many of the issues we are faced with today including urbanization centralization of wealth and climate change Using several case studies the book provides examples of the in part detrimental effects ICT driven Smart City solutions have had and will have on the human characteristics that contribute to the identity and sense of belonging innate to many of our cities The rise in Artificial Intelligence Big Data and technologies like social media has changed how people interact with and in cities and Allam discusses of how these changes require planners engineers and other urban professionals to adjust their approach The main question the book seeks to address is how can we use emerging technologies to recalibrate our cities and ensure increased livability whilst also effectively dealing with their associate challenges This is an ongoing conversation but one that requires extensive thought as it has extensive consequences This book will be of interest to students academics professionals and policy makers across a broad range of subjects including urban studies architecture and STS geography and social policy

How Cities Matter Richard Harris, 2021-08-12 Most historians and social scientists treat cities as mere settings In fact urban places shape our experience There daily life has a faster artificial rhythm and for good and ill people and agencies affect each other through externalities uncompensated effects whose impact is inherently geographical In economic terms urban concentration enables efficiency and promotes innovation while raising the costs of land housing and labour Socially it can alienate or provide anonymity while fostering new forms of community It creates congestion and pollution posing challenges for governance Some effects extend beyond urban borders creating cultural change The character of cities varies by country and world region but it has generic qualities

a claim best tested by comparing places that are most different These qualities intertwine creating built environments that endure To fully comprehend such path dependency we need to develop a synthetic vision that is historically and geographically informed

Development and Investment in Infrastructure in Developing Countries: A 10-Year Reflection Innocent Musonda,Erastus Mwanaumo,Adetayo Onososen,Retsepile Kalaoane,2024-12-20 Development and Investment in Infrastructure in Developing Countries A 10 Year Reflection includes the contributions to the 10th International Conference on Development and Investment In infrastructure DII 2024 Livingstone Zambia 24 26 July 2024 The papers discuss evaluate and devise ways of maximising the benefits of infrastructure development and achieve outputs that will inform policy and wider development goals This Open Access book is invaluable to leaders researchers practitioners and stakeholders involved or interested in infrastructure development in developing countries

The Experimental City James Evans,Andrew Karvonen,Rob Raven,2016-05-20 This book explores how the concept of urban experimentation is being used to reshape practices of knowledge production in urban debates about resilience climate change governance and socio technical transitions With contributions from leading scholars and case studies from the Global North and South from small to large scale cities this book suggests that urban experiments offer novel modes of engagement governance and politics that both challenge and complement conventional strategies The book is organized around three cross cutting themes Part I explores the logics of urban experimentation different approaches and how and why they are deployed Part II considers how experiments are being staged within cities by whom and with what effects Part III examines how entire cities or groups of cities are constructed as experiments This book seeks to contribute a deeper and more socially and politically nuanced understanding of how urban experiments shape cities and drive wider changes in society providing a framework to examine the phenomenon of urban experimentation in conceptual and empirical detail
