The Landscapists Ed Wall, 2020-04-06 Who defines the landscapes around us What practices are employed as contemporary landscapes are produced This issue argues that landscapes are made and remade through interrelations between people and the worlds around them from geographers investigating the lives of urban wastelands to landscape architects projecting future cities and from migrants navigating border systems to artists working with local residents In contrast to tendencies to emphasise the physical forms of landscapes with their potential to be redesigned and represented in drawings this issue brings to the forefront the social constructedness of landscapes by focusing on a range of critical practices and daily actions As conventional frames of landscape are challenged other ways of measuring mapping imagining designing building and occupying them are revealed For centuries artists and designers have represented landscapes of power in paintings and have transformed them through their design proposals But in recent years a number of researchers designers artists and activists have explored an expanded field of landscape investigating populations fleeing conflict zones reimagining cities facing ecological challenges questioning territorial claims and critiquing processes of urbanisation This issue focuses on some of these individuals whose work and lives encompass a diverse range of practices brought together through their critical redefinition of landscape relations

The more intensively we exploit the urban and rural landscape the greater the demands we place on our environment and what it can provide Demographic change shrinking cities urban expansion climate change and the transition to renewable energy sources are confronting us with challenges of ever greater magnitude Solar fields and bio energy crops are changing the face of the landscape and new traffic and energy infrastructure criss crosses the countryside Meanwhile vast efforts are being made to adapt existing infrastructure to meet changing demands In the process it has once again become clear that we must consider our use of natural resources not just from a local perspective but within a broader context Green infrastructure strategies can take quite different forms ranging from floodwater protection measures to the integration of traffic and energy systems and the development of urban green The goal for society is to improve the diversity and resilience of our environment and to minimize the effects of climate change In essays interviews and profiles of the best realized projects from the past few years Green Infrastructure examines the challenges and tasks facing contemporary landscape architecture and what it can achieve to address them This book is published on the occasion of the awarding of the German Landscape Architecture Prize 2015 Greening Berlin Jens Lachmund, 2013-01-04

How plant and animal species conservation became part of urban planning in Berlin and how the science of ecology contributed to this change Although nature conservation has traditionally focused on the countryside issues of biodiversity protection also appear on the political agendas of many cities One of the emblematic examples of this now worldwide trend has been the German city of Berlin where since the 1970s urban planning has been complemented by a systematic policy of biotope protection at first only in the walled city island of West Berlin but subsequently across the whole of the reunified capital In Greening Berlin Jens Lachmund uses the example of Berlin to examine the scientific and political dynamics that produced this change After describing a tradition of urban greening in Berlin that began in the late nineteenth century Lachmund details the practices of urban ecology and nature preservation that emerged in West Berlin after World War II and have continued in post unification Berlin He tells how ecologists and naturalists created an ecological understanding of urban space on which later nature conservation policy was based Lachmund argues that scientific change in ecology and the new politics of nature mutually shaped or co produced each other under locally specific conditions in Berlin He shows how the practices of ecologists coalesced with administrative practices to form an institutionally embedded and politically consequential nature regime Lachmund s study sheds light not only on the changing place of nature in the modern city but also on the political use of science in environmental conflicts showing the mutual formation of science politics and nature in an urban context CA2RE+ Delft Recommendation Roberto Cavallo,Alper Alkan,Joran Kuijper,2023-11-15 CA2RE

Flights of Imagination Sonja Dümpelmann,2014-09-19 In much the same way that views of the earth from the Apollo missions in the late 1960s and early 1970s led indirectly to the inauguration of Earth Day and the modern environmental movement the dawn of aviation ushered in a radically new way for architects landscape designers urban planners geographers and archaeologists to look at cities and landscapes As icons of modernity airports facilitated the development of a global economy during the twentieth and early twenty first centuries reshaping the way people thought about the world around them Professionals of the built environment awoke to the possibilities offered by the airports themselves as sites of design and by the electrifying new aerial perspective on landscape In Flights of Imagination Sonja Dümpelmann follows the evolution of airports from their conceptualization as landscapes and cities to modern day plans to turn decommissioned airports into public urban parks The author discusses landscape design and planning activities that were motivated legitimized and facilitated by the aerial view She also shows how viewing the earth from above redirected attention to bodily experience on the ground and illustrates how design professionals understood the aerial view as simultaneously abstract and experiential detailed and contextual harmful and essential Along the way Dempelmann traces this multiple dialectic from the 1920s to the land camouflage activities during World War II and from the environmental and landscape planning initiatives of the 1960s through today
