Commodities and Capabilities Amartya Sen,1999-06-17 Commodities and Capabilities presents a set of inter related theses concerning the foundations of welfare economics and in particular about the assessment of personal well being and advantage The argument presented focuses on the capability to function i e what a person can do or can be questioning in the process the more standard emphasis on opulence or on utility In fact a person s motivation behind choice is treated here as a parametric variable which may or may not coincide with the pursuit of self interest Given the large number of practical problems arising from the roles and limitations of different concepts of interest and the judgement of advantage and well being this scholarly investigation is both of theoretical interest and practical import

The Law of Capitalism and How to Transform It Katharina Pistor,2025-09-30 A fascinating study of the legal underpinnings of capitalism reasons why the system must be transformed and actions we can take Even though capitalism has been conventionally described as an economic system it is actually a deeply entrenched legal regime Law provides the material for coding simple objects promises and ideas as capital assets It also provides the means for avoiding the legal constraints that societies have frequently imposed on capitalism Often lauded for creating levels of wealth unprecedented in human history capitalism is also largely responsible for the two greatest problems now confronting humanity the erosion of social and political cohesion which undermines democratic self governance and the threats that emanate from climate change By exploring the ways that Western legal systems empower individuals to advance their interests against society Katharina Pistor reveals how capitalism is an unsustainable system designed to foster inequity She offers ideas for rethinking how the transformation of the law and the economy can help us create a more just system before it is too late
