Bjorklund, 2000-05-01 As one of the most hotly debated topics of the past decade false memory has attracted the interest of researchers and practitioners in many of psychology s subdisciplines Real world issues surrounding the credibility of memories particularly memories of traumatic events such as sexual abuse reported by both children and adults have been at the center of this debate Were the adults actually retrieving repressed memories under the careful direction of psychotherapists or were the memories being created by repeated suggestion Were children telling investigators about events that actually happened or were the interviewing techniques used to get at unpleasant experiences serving to implant memories that eventually became their own There is evidence in the psychological research literature to support both sides and the potential impact on individuals families and society as a whole has been profound This book is an attempt to cut through the undergrowth and get at the truth of the recovered memory false memory creation puzzle The contributors review seminal work from their own research programs and provide theory and critical evaluation of existing research that is necessary to translate theory into practice The book will be of great value to basic and applied memory researchers clinical and social psychologists and other professionals working within the helping and legal professions Making Memory Alana M Vincent,2014-11-27 The twentieth century has been called a century of horror Proof of that designation can be found in the vast and ever increasing volume of scholarly work on violence trauma memory and history across diverse academic disciplines This book demonstrates not only the ways in which the wars of the twentieth century have altered theological engagement and religious practice but also the degree to which religious ways of thinking have shaped the way we construct historical narratives Drawing on diverse sources from the Hebrew Bible to Commonwealth war graves from Greek tragedy to post Holocaust theology Alana M Vincent probes the intersections between past and present memory and identity religion and nationality The result is a book that defies categorization and offers no easy answers but instead pursues an agenda of theological realism holding out continued hope for the restoration of the world Trauma and Memory Linda Williams,Victoria L. Genocide and the Politics of Memory Herbert Hirsch, 2000-11-09 More than sixty million people have been victims of genocide in the twentieth century alone including recent casualties in Bosnia and Rwanda Herbert Hirsch studies repetitions of large scale human violence in order to ascertain why people in every historical epoch seem so willing to kill each other He argues that the primal passions unleashed in the cause of genocide are tied to the manipulation of memory for political purposes According to Hirsch leaders often invoke or create memories of real or fictitious past injustices to motivate their followers to kill for political gain or other reasons Generations pass on their particular versions of events which then become history If we understand how cultural memory is created Hirsch says we may then begin to understand how and why episodes of mass murder occur and will be able to act to prevent them In order to revise the politics of memory Hirsch proposes essential reforms in both the modern political state and in systems of education
