By Clive Finlayson The Improbable Primate How Water Shaped Human Evolution Hardcover:

The Improbable Primate Clive Finlayson, 2014-03-27 Taking an ecological approach to our evolution Clive Finlayson considers the origins of modern humans within the context of a drying climate and changing landscapes Finlayson argues that environmental change particularly availability of water played a critical role in shaping the direction of human evolution contributing to our spread and success He argues that our ancestors carved a niche for themselves by leaving the forest and forcing their way into a long established community of carnivores in a tropical savannah as climate changes opened up the landscape They took their chance at high noon when most other predators were asleep Adapting to this new lifestyle by shedding their hair and developing an active sweating system to keep cool being close to fresh water was vital As the climate dried our ancestors already bipedal became taller and slimmer more adept at travelling farther in search of water The challenges of seeking water in a drying landscape moulded the minds and bodies of early humans and directed their migrations and eventual settlements In this fresh and provocative view of a seven million year evolutionary journey Finlayson demonstrates the radical implications for the interpretation of fossils and technologies and shows that understanding humans within an ecological context provides insights into the emergence and spread of Homo sapiens sapiens worldwide

The Cradle of Humanity Mark Maslin, 2017 One of the fundamental questions of our existence is why we are so smart There are lots of drawbacks to having a large brain including the huge food intake needed to keep the organ running the frequency with which it goes wrong and our very high infant and mother mortality rates compared with other mammals due to the difficulty of giving birth to offspring with very large heads So why did evolution favour the brainy ape This question has been widely debated among biological anthropologists and in recent years Maslin and his colleagues have pioneered a new theory that might just be the answer Looking back to a crucial period some 1.9 million years ago when brain capacity increased by as much as 80% The Cradle of Humanity explores the implications of two adaptive responses by our hominin ancestors to rapid climatic changes big jaws and big brains Maslin argues that the impact of changing landscapes and fluctuating climates that led to the appearance of intermittent freshwater lakes in East Africa may have played a key role in human evolution Alongside the physical evidence of fossils and tools he considers social theories of why a large complex brain would have provided a major advantage when trying to survive in the constantly changing East African landscape
