"The well capabilities in all of our three simulators are very similar. Differences occur when a capability doesn't apply to that simulator (e.g. steam injection is not relevant for IMEX, a black-oil, isothermal simulator). Additionally the grid capabilities are very similar. Therefore, injectivity modeling and hydraulic fracture model can be carried out in all three simulators.

The choice of simulator to use is determined by the reservoir fluids and the fluids injected. E.g. water or dry gas injection can be modeled in IMEX, but GEM would be need for volatile oil or condensate reservoirs, or CO2 injection in depleted oil or saline aquifers for sequestration. For most thermal applications you would need to run STARS.

Production from hydraulic fractured reservoirs is usually modeled in IMEX or GEM depending on whether or not multicomponent effects, such as adsorption, are important.

Papers SPE 132093, SPE 122530 are a couple of references you can look at the describe modeling of fractured shale reservoirs using CMG software. General Manager European Region CMG" necessary due to the importance of predict the consequences and products of water or oil exploitation as well as the vast quantity of variables that are associated with hydraulic engineering oil and rock geomechanics Due to this the present work consists to show the relative activities for geomechanical coupling and flux simulation based on paper SPE 79709 of Dean et al 2006 This way the used software for coupling was IMEX 2019 in the explicit iterative coupling with geomechanics and flux model of the same simulator and posteriorly was used the geomechanics simulator FLAC3D 6.0 associated with the flux model of IMEX and programming with MATLAB and FISH to transfer the data between simulators In addition the results demonstrate the satisfactory obtention of convergence of the problems proposed by Dean et al 2006 in IMEX with geomechanics For iterative coupling between FLAC3D and IMEX was obtained good behavior convergence of problem 1 At the end of the simulations a reservoir model is elaborated based on this problem with the inclusion of a horizontal fracture near the region of the producing well This type of coupling allows an accurate study with the highest level of complexity and inclusion of variables to reservoir behavior as the inclusion of fractures and constitutive models
