Abstract—This paper presents a new method for the identification of nonlinear systems. The method is based on the use of a neural network to model the system. The network is trained using a set of input-output data. The output of the network is compared with the actual output of the system. The error is used to adjust the weights of the network. The process is repeated until the error is minimized. The method is applied to the identification of a nonlinear system. The results show that the method is effective in identifying nonlinear systems.
