Confronting Scale In Archaeology Issues Of Theory And Practice:

Confronting Scale in Archaeology Gary Lock, Brian Molyneaux, 2006-11-22 Archaeological analysis operates on a continuum of scale from the microscopic analysis of a single artifact to regional interpretations of cultural adaptations over thousands of years A common assumption is that shifting from one scale to another in space and time is a seamless process Scale in this sense is invisible a mere mathematical abstraction Yet issues of scale exist at the fundamental level of archaeological interpretation The traditional analytical debate in archaeology between advocates of the so called processual and postprocessual approaches ranges around the question of scales of reasoning At the one extreme remote observation and the ability to interpret events and processes over vast reaches of time and space are possible because the analysis concerns the hoped for elucidation of general cultural processes at the other they are not as both analyst and subject are isolated in their own subjectivities Analysts occupying the middle ground often advocate a multidimensional or holistic approach which involves multiple scales of analysis and interpretation As the battleground tends to be the degree to which specific datasets and analytical processes justify the interpretations put forth archaeologists rarely dress issues relating to the profound shifts in the scale of visualization necessary in all approaches to the past And why should they Ignoring scale is the concession archaeology makes to interpretation

Contradictions of Archaeological Theory Sandra Wallace, 2012-01-30 Is current archaeological theory stuck at an impasse Sandra Wallace argues that archaeological theory has become mired as a result of logical and ontological contradictions By showing that these contradictions are a result of common underlying philosophical assumptions and fallacies this book is able to show how a fresh approach to this discipline is necessary to resolve them even if this requires re examining some of the tenants of orthodox archaeology This fresh approach is achieved by using Critical Realism as an under labourer to philosophically evaluate archaeological theory Starting by assessing the historical impact of philosophy on the discipline and then looking at the current relationship between archaeology and the ontology of the material this book facilitates the construction of discipline specific theory by archaeologists The result is an approach to archaeology that allows both students and practitioners to free themselves from endemic contradictions and re discover their approach to archaeological theory

Archaeological Networks and Social Interaction Lieve Donnellan, 2020-04-03 Archaeological Networks and Social Interaction focuses on conceptualisations of human interaction human thing entanglement material affordances and agency Network concepts in the archaeological discipline are ubiquitous these days They range from loose concepts used as metaphors to address a notion of connectivity to highly formal and mathematically complex predictions of human behaviour These different networked worlds sometimes clash and rarely converge Archaeologists interested in network analysis however have achieved a much better understanding of the implications of adopting formal methods for studying social interaction and there have been theoretical advancements realising a better synergy between different theoretical perspectives These nascent concerns are explored further in this volume with regional specialists exploring case studies from Prehistory to the Middle Ages throughout the Ancient and New Worlds outlining how formal network approaches contribute to studying social interaction archaeologically This book will be of interest to archaeologists wishing to access the latest research on networks and interconnectivity and how these approaches have been productively modified to archaeological research

The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of the Contemporary World Paul Graves-Brown, Rodney Harrison, Angela Piccini, 2013-10-17 It has been clear for many years that the ways in which archaeology is practised have been a direct product of a particular set of social cultural and historical circumstances archaeology is always carried out in the present More recently however many have begun to consider how archaeological techniques might be used to reflect more directly on the contemporary world itself how we might undertake archaeologies of as well as in the present This Handbook is the first comprehensive survey of an exciting and rapidly expanding sub field and provides an authoritative overview of the newly emerging focus on the archaeology of the present and recent past In addition to detailed archaeological case studies it includes essays by scholars working on the relationships of different disciplines to the archaeology of the contemporary world including anthropology psychology philosophy historical geography science and technology studies communications and media ethnoarchaeology forensic archaeology sociology film performance and contemporary art This volume seeks to explore the boundaries of an emerging sub discipline to develop a tool kit of concepts and methods which are applicable to this new field and to suggest important future trajectories for research It makes a significant intervention by drawing together scholars working on a broad range of themes approaches methods and case studies from diverse contexts in different parts of the world which have not previously been considered collectively

Geoarchaeology Carlos Cordova, 2018-08-30 Geoarchaeology is traditionally concerned with reconstructing the environmental aspects of past societies using the methods of the earth sciences The field has been steadily enriched by scholars from a diversity of disciplines and much has happened as the importance of global perspectives on environmental change has emerged Carlos Cordova provides a fully up to date account of geoarchaeology that reflects the important changes that have occurred in the past four decades Innovative features include the development of the human ecological approach and the impact of technology on this approach how the diversity of disciplines contributes to archaeological questions frontiers of archaeology in the deep past particularly the Anthropocene the geoarchaeology of the contemporary past the emerging field of ethno geoarchaeology the role of geoarchaeology in global environmental crises and climate change

Finding the Limits of the Limes Philip Verhagen, Jamie Joyce, Mark R. Groenhuijzen, 2019-02-08 This open access book demonstrates the application of simulation modelling and network analysis techniques in the field of Roman studies It summarizes and discusses the results of a 5 year research project carried out by the editors that aimed to apply spatial dynamical modelling to reconstruct and understand the socio economic development of the Dutch part of the Roman frontier limes zone in particular the agrarian economy and the related development of settlement patterns and transport networks in the area The project papers are accompanied by invited chapters presenting case studies and reflections from other parts of the Roman Empire focusing on the themes of subsistence economy demography transport and mobility and socio economic networks in the Roman period The book shows the added value of state of the art computer modelling techniques and bridges computational and conventional approaches Topics that will be of particular interest to archaeologists are the question of forced surplus production the demographic and economic effects of the Roman occupation on the local population and the structuring of transport networks and settlement patterns For modellers issues of sensitivity analysis and validation of modelling results are specifically addressed This book will appeal to students and researchers working in the computational humanities and social sciences in particular archaeology and ancient history How Things Make History Astrid Oyen, 2025-10-01 Bright red terra sigillata pots dating to the first three centuries CE can be found throughout the Western Roman provinces The pots widespread distribution and recognisability make them key evidence in the effort to reconstruct the Roman Empire s economy and society Drawing on recent ideas in material culture this book asks a radically new question what was it about the pots themselves that allowed them to travel so widely and be integrated so quickly into a range of contexts and practices To answer this question Van Oyen offers a fresh analysis in which objects are no longer passive props but rather they actively shape historical trajectories Rethinking Migrations in Late

Prehistoric Eurasia Manuel Fernández-Götz, Courtney Nimura, Philipp W. Stockhammer, Rachel Cartwright, 2022-12-22 Rethinking Migrations in Late Prehistoric Eurasia rethinks the role of migrations in late prehistoric Eurasia integrating cutting edge scientific analyses with theoretical perspectives that highlight the complexity of past population movements

Constructions of Time and History in the Pre-Columbian Andes Edward Swenson, Andrew Roddick, 2018-03-15 Constructions of Time and History in the Pre Columbian Andes explores archaeological approaches to temporalities social memory and constructions of history in the pre Columbian Andes The authors examine a range of indigenous temporal experiences and ideologies including astronomical cyclical generational eschatological and mythical time This nuanced interdisciplinary volume challenges outmoded anthropological theories while building on an emic perspective to gain greater understanding of pre Columbian Andean cultures Contributors to the volume rethink the dichotomy of past and present by understanding history as indigenous Andeans perceived it recognizing the past as a palpable and living presence We live in history not apart from it Within this framework time can be understood as a current rather than as distinct points moments periods or horizons The Andes offer a rich context by which to evaluate recent philosophical explorations of space and time Using the varied materializations and ritual emplacements of time in a diverse sampling of landscapes Constructions of Time and History in the Pre Columbian Andes serves as a critique of archaeology s continued and exclusive dependence on linear chronologies that obscure historically specific temporal practices and beliefs Contributors Tamara L Bray Zachary J Chase Mar a Jos Culquichic n Venegas Terence D Altroy Giles Spence Morrow Matthew Sayre Francisco Seoane Darryl Wilkinson
