

HOW DO YOU DOCK AN INBOARD?

If the boat has a right-hand propeller — like all Cantares do — approach the dock with the port (left) side of the boat. With the motor at idle — and the boat 1'-2' away from the dock — swing engine into reverse and the boat will swing into position for tying up.

B. In A Current

Move in against the current even, though you are going to dock head on the starboard side. It takes very little power to steer against the torque (rotating motion of the propeller).

C. Beating A Wind

Depending on the severity of the wind, dock as (A) if wind is moderate, and (B) if the wind is strong.

In all cases, you can dock either way depending on your preference. When you acquire that proficiency you will have the personal satisfaction of being an adept boat handler.

HOW DO YOU DRIVE FORWARD INTO SLIP?

As long as you have forward motion under power, you'll have steering control. However, you must have the boat in such an attitude so that when you apply reverse the boat will go with the torque and stop in the desired position.

In any event, when in close quarters in a slip or dockside, proceed with caution so if you can see you will bump the dock — you can have time to "catch" the pilings or head off from another tied-up boat.

You may find it easier to back into a slip in a relatively more maneuvered with stern thruster, it makes you look like a true pro.

Drive boat toward the slip or stern. When bow of boat nears the slip, turn ab beam slip so stern will swing toward the T.

Then reverse engine or engines or boat into slip using forward and reverse the progress. It is a wise idea to set the bit over tiller and keep it there until it's secure.

Most people prefer to drive bow in, always remember to leave the T cutting slightly across to the left or right. Then apply a little power in reverse with them swing or straighten out to the proper corner of the slip location.

America, the Owner's Manual Bob Graham,Chris Hand,2016-07-15 In 2016 Americans fed up with the political process vented that frustration with their votes Republicans nominated for president a wealthy businessman and former reality show host best known on the campaign trail for his sharp rhetoric against immigration and foreign trade Democrats nearly selected a self described socialist who ran on a populist platform against the influence of big money in politics While it is not surprising that Americans would channel their frustrations into votes for contenders who pledge to end business as usual the truth is that we don t have to pin our hopes for greater participation on any one candidate All of us have a say if we learn master and practice the skills of effective citizenship One of the biggest roadblocks to participation in democracy is the perception that privileged citizens and special interests command the levers of power and that everyday Americans can t fight City Hall That perception is undoubtedly why a 2015

Pew Charitable Trusts survey found that 74 percent of those Americans surveyed believed that most elected officials didn't care what people like them thought. Graham and Hand intend to change that conventional wisdom by showing citizens how to flex their citizenship muscles. They describe effective citizenship skills and provide tips from civic experts. Even more importantly, they offer numerous examples of everyday Americans who have used their skills to make democracy respond. The reader will see themselves in these examples of citizens who chose to be victorious participants rather than tranquil spectators in the arena of democracy. By the end of the book, you will have new confidence that citizen participation is the lifeblood of America and will be ready to make governments work for you, not the other way around. Classic Century

Powerboats Paul Miklos Frank Miklos Trudi Miklos, Century is a renowned manufacturer of runabout utility and water ski boats. Starting out in Milwaukee in 1926, Century continues to be a leader in the powerboat industry today. This book traces the company's humble beginnings to market prominence, focusing on the wooden-hulled inboard and outboard boats built from 1930 to 1968. In the wood era, the company offered utilities, triple cockpit speedboats, and streamlined runabouts that performed exceptionally well against the competition.
