Dams And Development Transnational Struggles For Water And Power:

Dams and Development Sanjeev Khagram, 2018-08-06 Big dams built for irrigation power water supply and other purposes were among the most potent symbols of economic development for much of the twentieth century. Of late they have become a lightning rod for challenges to this vision of development as something planned by elites with scant regard for environmental and social consequences especially for the populations that are displaced as their homelands are flooded. In this book Sanjeev Khagram traces changes in our ideas of what constitutes appropriate development through the shifting transnational dynamics of big dam construction. Khagram tells the story of a growing but contentious world society that features novel and increasingly efficacious norms of appropriate behavior in such areas as human rights and environmental protection. The transnational coalitions and networks led by nongovernmental groups that espouse such norms may seem weak in comparison with states corporations and such international agencies as the World Bank. Yet they became progressively more effective at altering the policies and practices of these historically more powerful actors and organizations from the 1970s on. Khagram develops these claims in a detailed ethnographic account of the transnational struggles around the Narmada River Valley Dam Projects in central India, a huge complex of thirty large and more than three thousand small dams. He offers further substantiation through a comparative historical analysis of the political economy of big dam projects in India, Brazil, South Africa, and China, as well as by examining the changing behavior of international agencies and global companies. The author concludes with a discussion of the World Commission on Dams, an innovative attempt in the late 1990s to generate new norms among conflicting stakeholders. Dams, Democracy and Development

Sanjeev Khagram, 1999 Dams, Power, and the Politics of Ethiopia's Renaissance Tom Lavers, 2024-10-01 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence. It is free to read on the Oxford Academic platform and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. After more than a decade of construction, Ethiopia is filling the Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam (GERD), a controversial dam with the potential to transform the hydrology and politics of the Nile Basin. The GERD is the culmination of a dam building boom carried out over three decades and a key pillar of the Ethiopian Peoples Revolutionary Democratic Front's (EPRDF) efforts to bring about an Ethiopian Renaissance. Dams Power and the Politics of Ethiopia's Renaissance provides a detailed examination of the domestic and international political dynamics that shaped Ethiopia's dam building, drawing on extensive primary research including more than a hundred interviews with politicians, technocrats, consultants, and donors. The authors reflect on the implications of Ethiopia's dam building for broader debates about the role of the state in late development, the dynamics of twenty-first century dam building, and the political economy of renewable energy transitions. A central argument of the book is that Ethiopia's dam building is symbolic of the successes and failures of the EPRDF's developmental state. On the one hand, this dam boom enhanced electricity generation capacity while constituting a key element of the state infrastructure.

investment that turned Ethiopia into one of the world's fastest growing economies. In contrast, a politically driven decision making process undermined electricity planning, contributed to an unsustainable debt burden and ultimately failed to provide reliable electricity access to key users. Following the EPRDF's collapse, the subsequent Prosperity Party government has taken steps away from the state led development model of its predecessor while labouring towards the final completion of the GERD.

Oxford Studies in African Politics and International Relations is a series for scholars and students working on African politics and International Relations and related disciplines. Volumes concentrate on contemporary developments in African political science, political economy and International Relations, such as electoral politics, democratization, decentralization, gender and political representation, the political impact of natural resources, the dynamics and consequences of conflict, comparative political thought and the nature of the continent's engagement with the East and West. Comparative and mixed methods work is particularly encouraged. Case studies are welcomed but should demonstrate the broader theoretical and empirical implications of the study and its wider relevance to contemporary debates. The focus of the series is on sub-Saharan Africa, although proposals that explain how the region engages with North Africa and other parts of the world are of interest.

Series Editors: Nic Cheeseman, University of Birmingham; Peace Medie, University of Bristol; and Ricardo Soares de Oliveira, University of Oxford.

Development-Induced Displacement in India and China Florence Padovani, 2016-08-29. The world seems to have recently discovered India and China as major players in Asia and political and economic connections between the two countries are rapidly growing. Beyond the fashionable phenomenon, the two countries have much in common and many shared experiences. Both are developing countries with dynamic economies focused on lifting their people out of poverty. There are also differences, as well: India is a democracy while China is an autocratic state and the speed of economic growth is much higher in India. This collection provides a comparative analysis of development induced migration in India and China caused by urbanization and dam construction. The contributors include scholars from both countries working in both academia and consultancy positions.

A Political Ecology of Women, Water and Global Environmental Change Stephanie Buechler, Anne-Marie Hanson, 2015-03-02. This edited volume explores how a feminist political ecology framework can bring fresh insights to the study of rural and urban livelihoods dependent on vulnerable rivers, lakes, watersheds, wetlands and coastal environments. Bringing together political ecologists and feminist scholars from multiple disciplines, the book develops solution oriented advances to theory, policy and planning to tackle the complexity of these global environmental changes. Using applied research on the contemporary management of groundwater, springs, rivers, lakes, watersheds and coastal wetlands in Central and South Asia, Northern Central and Southern Africa and South and North America, the authors draw on a variety of methodological perspectives and new theoretical approaches to demonstrate the importance of considering multiple layers of social difference as produced by and central to the effective governance and local management of water resources. This unique collection employs a unifying feminist political ecology framework that emphasizes the ways that gender interacts with other social and geographical locations of water resource users In doing so the book further questions the normative gender discourses that underlie policies and practices surrounding rural and urban water management and climate change water pollution large scale development and dams water for crop and livestock production and processing resource knowledge and expertise and critical livelihood studies This book will be of interest to students and scholars of environmental studies development studies feminist and environmental geography anthropology sociology environmental philosophy public policy planning media studies Latin American and other area studies as well as women s and gender studies

Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement Bogumil Terminski, 2014-05-01 This book explores the issue of development induced resettlement with a particular emphasis on the humanitarian legal and social aspects of this problem Today so called development induced displacement and resettlement DIDR is one of the dominant causes of internal spatial mobility worldwide Each year over 15 million people are forced to abandon their homes to make space for economic development infrastructure The construction of dams and irrigation projects the expansion of communication networks urbanization and re urbanization the extraction and transportation of mineral resources forced evictions in urban areas and population redistribution schemes count among the many possible causes Terminski aims to present the issue of development caused displacement as a highly diverse global social problem occurring in all regions of the world As a human rights issue it poses a challenge to public international law and to institutions providing humanitarian assistance A significant part of this book is devoted to the current dynamics of development caused resettlement in Europe which has been neglected in the academic literature so far

Contemporary Water Governance in the Global South Leila M. Harris, Jacqueline A. Goldin, Christopher Sneddon, 2015-03-24 The litany of alarming observations about water use and misuse is now familiar over a billion people without access to safe drinking water almost every major river dammed and diverted increasing conflicts over the delivery of water in urban areas continuing threats to water quality from agricultural inputs and industrial wastes and the increasing variability of climate including threats of severe droughts and flooding across locales and regions These issues present tremendous challenges for water governance This book focuses on three major concepts and approaches that have gained currency in policy and governance circles both globally and regionally scarcity and crisis marketization and privatization and participation It provides a historical and contextual overview of each of these ideas as they have emerged in global and regional policy and governance circles and pairs these with in depth case studies that examine manifestations and contestations of water governance internationally The book interrogates ideas of water crisis and scarcity in the context of bio physical political social and environmental landscapes to better understand how ideas and practices linked to scarcity and crisis take hold and become entrenched in policy and practice The book also investigates ideas of marketization and privatization increasingly prominent features of water governance throughout the global South with particular attention to the varied implementation and effects of these governance practices The final section of the volume analyzes participatory water governance querying the disconnects between global discourses and local realities particularly as they intersect with the other themes of interest to the volume Promoting a view of changing water governance that links across these themes and in relation to contemporary realities the book is invaluable for students researchers advocates and policy makers interested in water governance challenges facing the developing world

Historical Dictionary of Environmentalism Peter Dauvergne, 2016-09-09 To capture the diversity within environmentalism this dictionary takes a global tack with a focus on ideas events institutions initiatives and green movements since the 1960s It strives to avoid a common error in many histories of environmentalism to exaggerate the input of the wealthy countries of Europe and North America and understate the influence of Africa Asia South and Central America and the Polar Regions It aims as well for a more comprehensive analysis than most histories of the modern environmental movement understanding environmentalism as emerging not only from grassroots and formal nongovernmental associations but also from corporate governmental and intergovernmental organizations and initiatives This assumes the ideas and energy infusing environmentalism with political purpose arise from hundreds of thousands of sources from corporate boardrooms to bureaucratic policies to international negotiations to activists Thus environmentalists are not only indigenous people blocking a logging road Greenpeace activists protesting a seal hunt or green candidates contesting an election an equal or larger number of environmentalists are working within the Japanese bureaucracy to implement environmental policies within the World Bank to assess the environmental impacts of loans within Wal Mart to green its purchasing practices or within intergovernmental forums to negotiate international environmental agreements This second edition of Historical Dictionary of Environmentalism contains a chronology an introduction and an extensive bibliography The dictionary section has over 300 cross referenced entries on important events issues organizations ideas and people shaping the direction of environmentalism worldwide This book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about environmentalism

The A to Z of Environmentalism Peter Dauvergne, 2009-09-02 Environmentalism involves hundreds of international environmental groups thousands of national groups and tens of thousands of local ones It also includes hundreds of international agreements hundreds of national environmental agencies and countless environmental sections in other organizations from those in multinational corporations to ones in regional and international organizations Such environmental concepts as sustainable development the precautionary principle corporate social responsibility and eco labeling percolate from all of these sources Every year new ideas refinements policies institutions markets and problems continue to enter into environmental debates and discourses making it nearly impossible to keep abreast of the changes constantly taking place The A to Z of Environmentalism is a paperback edition of the Historical Dictionary of

Environmentalism It strategically skips across issues concepts time organizations and cultures not with any pretense of producing a definitive dictionary but rather with the aim of producing an inclusive wide ranging and global history of environmentalism This goal is accomplished through a chronology an introductory essay and over 300 cross referenced dictionary entries
