| Understand that polynomials form a system analogous to the rational numbers, closed under addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division, and multiply polynomials.                                                                                                                                                                                      |                               |                                                 |
| Understand the Relationship between Zeros and Factors of Polynomials                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                               |                                                 |
| Know and apply the Remainder Theorem: for a polynomial $p(x)$ and a number $a$ , the remainder on division by $x - a$ is $p(a)$ , so $p(a) = 0$ if and only if $(x - a)$ is a factor of $p(x)$ .                                                                                                                                                              |                               |                                                 |
| Identify zeros of polynomials when suitable factorizations are available, and use the zeros to construct a rough graph of the function defined by the polynomial.                                                                                                                                                                                             |                               |                                                 |
| Use Polynomial Identities to Solve Problems                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                               |                                                 |
| Prove polynomial identities and use them to describe numerical relationships. For example, the polynomial identity $(x^2 + y^2)^2 = x^4 + y^4 + 2x^2y^2$ can be used to generate Pythagorean triples.                                                                                                                                                         |                               |                                                 |
| Know and apply the Binomial Theorem for the expansion of $(x + y)^n$ in powers of $x$ and $y$ for a positive integer $n$ , where $x$ and $y$ are any numbers, with coefficients determined for example by Pascal's Triangle.                                                                                                                                  |                               |                                                 |
| Simplify Radical Expressions                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                               |                                                 |
| Rewrite simple radical expressions in different forms, such as $\sqrt[3]{16x^4} = 2\sqrt[3]{2x^4}$ in the form $\sqrt[3]{a}\sqrt[3]{b}\sqrt[3]{c}$ , where $a$ , $b$ , and $c$ are integers with the degree of $x$ less than the degree of $\sqrt[3]{b}$ , using inspection, long division, or, for the more complicated radicals, a computer algebra system. |                               |                                                 |
